No. 99 COLOR LIGHT TRAIN CONTROL—As the train passes over track to which signal is connected, the yellow caution light changes to red, and the train stops. After an interval, the red light goes off, the green light shines and the train proceeds. Immediately after the last car has left the block, the light changes to yellow.

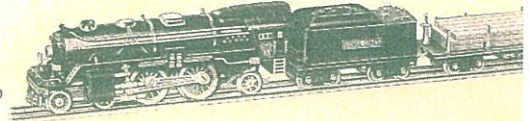

99
099 This action goes on indefinitely with remarkable smoothness and precision. By means of a small lever $5.50 at the base, you can control the intervals between light changes, or, if you choose, you can cut out the train control so that the train proceeds through block without stopping.

Includes special section of SS track, 2 No. 28 clear lamps, one No. 29 special yellow lamp, two "Lockons" and four fibre pins. 11 1/4 inches high.

BILLY asked for a Lionel Train for Christmas and made himself a complete model railroad. His friends, Chums, flocked to Billy's house. Begging for more. And Billy himself got more fun out of it than he had ever played with. He could make his train go forward. He could operate switches from the train would stop and then, after a while, it would go automatically. His locomotive had a headlight. His tunnels were ablaze with structural steel, just like real ones. Little wonder that Billy attracted so many friends. You, too, can enjoy the same thrills for Christmas. And then you can enjoy them all year long. Pick out the set you want.
